New Condo Development Re-defines Retirement with Resort Style Living.

As they age, seniors are changing retirement living and in the 21st century new retirement lifestyle communities are designed to keep seniors young by nourishing both their mind and body. Functioning more like a resort these places emphasize quality services, entertainment and social activity. These communities are tailored to suit an active lifestyle and with a range of options from dance lessons and gourmet dining to cooking classes, there are activities to suit everyone's taste.

While active senior condo communities have been popular in the US for quite some time, they are just starting to develop in Canada. Hearthstone By the Bay, a new resort style retirement condo development on the waterfront has just opened and purchasers are moving in. Situated on the edge of Humber Bay south of the Kingsway, Hearthstone By the Bay attracts purchasers by promising an active lifestyle and robust amenities package that includes a spa, pool and gym. The difference between this new resort style condo concept and the existing retirement rental model of the past; is that purchasers own their home and will never be forced to move if they require on-site health care.

"Today's lively communities are definitely not your parents' retirement home", says Renée Bourgon of Davies Smith Developments, builder of the project. "Gone are the days of bingo and sing-alongs, instead, a typical days' schedule may include billiards,
